The purpose of this product is to help people to have better conversations, to be able to better articulate which decision makers need to be considered when making decisions. It contains a model of how the decision-making process works in an emergency. This model is represented in a network diagram, which shows the different stakeholders involved in decision-making and how they interact with each other. The diagram includes different types of stakeholders such as Governmental Authorities, Non-Governmental Organizations, Private Sector, and Media. It also includes various levels of decision-making bodies such as National, Regional, and International levels. The diagram is designed to help people to understand the complex network of stakeholders involved in decision-making during an emergency and to identify key decision makers who need to be involved in the decision-making process.
